

About the Design Build Institute of America

The Design-Build Institute of America (DBIA) was founded in 1993 to provide a voice for design-build practitioners, to advocate best practices, to create and disseminate educational information, and to furnish advice and support to facility owners and users. Its membership includes design-builders, construction contractors, design professionals, subcontractors, representatives of government agencies, academics and other professionals.

Who Uses Design Build?

Design-Build is the project delivery system of choice on more than 50 percent of the non-residential construction projects in the European Community and more than 70 percent in Japan. In the United States, the private sector's use of design-build has been increasing during the past thirty years, and is found in a wide array of commercial, institutional and industrial applications. In the U.S. sector, the federal government, as well as many states and local governments, employ design-build contracting for a significant percentage of their building programs.

The Mt. Diablo Club

In 1914, about the time Archduke Ferdinand of Austria was assassinated – the prelude to World War 1 – Robert Burgess converted the farm into Mt. Diablo Country Club as an incentive for people to buy lots of summer homes. He built the Chalet in 1916 as a 39-room inn for members and their guests. An overhead passageway connected the Chalet to the Clubhouse which is now a private residence at 1925 Alameda Diablo. Up the hill, where our present Clubhouse now stands, was pool hall. It also served as a gambling casino, Movie Theater and dressing rooms for the swimming pool. The pool dates from the Roaring '20s, when it was called "The Plunge". A new, larger state of the art pool opened in May 2002.

Diablo Lake

It's a man-made lake, one-and-a-half miles long, situated at the end of Alameda Diablo. It featured a boat dock, boathouse, canoes, rowboats, high and low diving platforms, outdoor lighting and a snack shack.

Diablo Barn

The Club's other main activity centered at the Diablo Barn at the corner of Avenida Nueva and La Cadena. Here, the Club maintained a string of horses and a Riding Master. Horse shows, gymkhanas, and mountain riding were popular with children and adults.

Continuing to educate upcoming Design Builders is one of the building blocks of our industry.

Our programs and golf tournaments help fund several student development activities:

- Participation at our National Conferences
- Teams to the Reno DB competition
- Six $5,000 Scholarships
- Sponsorships of programs and student events

The Western Pacific Region currently sponsors student chapters and activities at Long Beach State, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Chico State, Sacramento State, Stanford University with additional schools in the development stages.

Thank you for your support of DBIA-WPR and especially up and coming students!!
