Design-build procurement for construction projects is becoming more common in the Hawaii market, with government agencies leading the way. Design-build teams have expended significant amounts of resources in pursuit of these projects and the end results have been mixed for all participants, including the owners. The failings have left many reluctant to embrace the practices that lead to success.

The Design-Build Institute of America (DBIA) has developed a set of guidelines and procedures to ensure the process runs smoothly and efficiently, from the preparation of the RFPs to the post-award design and construction. Please join us for this presentation by Alan Levy, DBIA, Chair of the DBIA Hawaii Chapter, and Steven Baldrige, PE, president of Baldrige and Associates Structural Engineering. Alan and Steve will help you understand the design-build process and how Design-Build Done Right can unleash the power of a truly integrated team that improves your chances of success.
