

Civic Environment Culture Change: Alternative Deliveries

It's tough for rapid change to happen in a civic environment where various agendas, changing elected representatives, public procurement policy and the status quo must all balance in the pursuit of quality projects. Civic agency representatives who have experience in delivering design and construction projects will share their perspectives on optimizing project delivery including how to incorporate alternative delivery methods into their programs. They will discuss challenges, ideas for championing quality and predictability, and stories of how they are achieving improved outcomes collaborating and interfacing with the private sector. Come to hear your agency peers give you their inside perspective. A special invite and rate are provided for agency representatives.
